SQUEEZE MAKES SLAM

Cleveland Woman Shows Expertness of Weaker Sex in Contract, by Courageous Bid and Clever Play

Solution to Problem
Contract Problem

BY WM. E. McKENNEY
Secretary, American Bridge League

Women bridge players of the country, last year, made a remarkable showing, winning several important events, while Miss Elinor Murdock and Miss Helen Bonwit of New York placed third in the National Masters Pair event. Today's interesting hand was played by Mrs. H. E. Funk of Cleveland, one of the outstanding women players of the country.

The bidding might be termed rather optimistic. Mrs. Funk in South had no opening bid, but when her partner in the North bid a diamond, her proper response was a one-over-one forcing bid of one spade.

West's overall of two clubs, while rather light, should not be termed dangerous, since he is not vulnerable. North's jump to four spades is a slam try and was accepted by Mrs. Funk, who went to six spades.

The Play

West's opening lead was the king of clubs. If West had continued with the ace of clubs, of course, there would not be much play to the hand, as the hearts could be set and an entry gained into dummy with the ace of diamonds.

When West shifted to the seven of diamonds, however, Mrs. Funk went right up with the ace in dummy and cashed the ace and king of spades, East discarding a club. A small heart was won by Mrs. Funk with the jack.

Now five rounds of spades were taken, all the diamonds and the jack of clubs being discarded from dummy, and four of hearts. On the first four spades East dropped three clubs and the jack of diamonds, but on the fifth spade he was squeezed.

If he had let go the king of diamonds, it would have established Mrs. Funk's ten spot. However he dropped a heart. Therefore, Mrs. Funk cashed her king of hearts, and then led the queen of hearts, overtaking in dummy with the ace and winning the last trick with the five of hearts.

Today's Contract Problem

South rather optimistically arrived at a three no trump contract. West opens the three of spades. How should the hand be played both offensively and defensively?
